

From the Lips of Children God Has Ordained Praise!

by Kelly DuFour

the teachers of the law saw the wonderful things he did and the children shouting in the temple area, 'Hosanna to the Son of David,' they were indignant. 'Do you hear what these children are saying?' they asked him. 'Yes,' replied Jesus, 'have you never read, "From the lips of children and infants you have ordained praise"?'" (Matthew 21:15,16).

Jesus had just cleared the temple and healed many who were sick and lame. The chief priests and the teachers saw all that took place—the "wonderful things" Jesus did—but that did not move them to worship and recognize Jesus for who He was, the Messiah.

Worship with a Childlike Faith

Instead, the children stopped what they were doing and spontaneously began to praise Jesus. It wasn't their great wisdom or study of the Scriptures that motivated them to praise Him; it came from their simplicity of heart and unadulterated faith in a loving, caring, wonder-working Savior. The children had a unique ability to see Jesus for who He was (and still is today)—the Son of God—and the natural response from their hearts and lips was praise.

Jesus took notice of this and confirmed and commended what the children were doing by using Scripture. (See Psalm 8:2.) I could just imagine how His eyes lit up and a genuine smile formed on His face as He saw the children. Once again the thought must have come to His mind, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Tips on Children's Worship

The question has been asked, "Can kids really have a meaningful worship service? Some of them can't even stay focused for more than a minute."

Yes, I believe children can be worshipers, and I have that promise from God's Word. The key is setting aside time to teach children how to worship and allow them the opportunity to do so.

Worship is more than just having a sing-a-long. There are many components of worship in a children's church service. Singing songs of praise, speaking praise, giving tithes and offerings, and serving others in ministry are a few of the main ones. Here are a few items to consider as you strive for a meaningful children's worship service.

Prepare Your Heart

Before I lead the children in worship, I need to make sure my heart is right before God. Do I have any unconfessed sin in my heart? Anger? Bitterness? Pride? I need to be a vessel of honor for God into which He can pour His anointing as I lead.

Order of Service

If you want to have a powerful worship experience, make sure you carefully plan your service. I prefer to do all the praise and worship songs in one setting and then go right into the offering collection and the message.

During the offering, I have a child share a "Kid Talent." This is a great way for them to share a talent that God has given them and use it to bring Him glory and honor. It is also a good idea to save some time at the end, during the altar service, for more worship.

Song Selection

We are truly blessed today with a large selection of praise and worship music for children. The worship service needs to be kid-friendly. As you are preparing the song list, ask yourself:

Will the children understand the meaning of this song?

Does this song contain too many words, making it hard for the children to learn?

Do I have a good mix of songs—fun, fast praise songs, songs for transition, and slow songs of worship?

It is often too easy to try to lead children in "adult" worship. As you lead, observe the children. If most of them are not entering into worship, you need to make adjustments to bring it back to their level. Take a brief moment to teach about why we worship. Use Scripture verses as you teach, such as Psalm 8:2; 29:1-4; 33:1-5; 100:1-5; 150:1-6; James 5:13.

Lead By Example

Children will also learn how to worship when they see it modeled by those who lead. The principle here is simple—show the kids how to worship through your actions. Encourage their involvement and then show them by your example.

Involve the Children

Children will be more responsive in the worship service when they have ownership in it. A child can be a praise team member (a singer and/or instrumentalist), song slide or overhead attendant, sound technician, prayer team member, or song motions leader.

Above all, I have found that the foundational factor in a meaningful worship service is the presence of the Lord. As in the passage of Scripture mentioned earlier, when the children sense the presence of Jesus, they will worship Him.
